

Contents

Abstract	i
A Note on Romanisation	ii
Map of China and Taiwan	iii
Acknowledgements	iv

Introduction	1
---------------------	----------

PART I CULTURE IN TRANSITION: GLOBAL DYNAMICS AND NATIONAL RESPONSES

1 Global Transformations	5
1.1 Globalisation: Debates and Issues	5
1.2 Culture, Media and Globalisation	22
2 Nation-States and National Cultures in Transition	31
2.1 Nation, Nation-state, and National Culture / Identity	31
2.2 Nations and National Identity in the Global Age	46
3 National Cinema in the Global Age	55
3.1 General Definition of National Cinema	55
3.2 The Scepticism of the Concept of National Cinema	57
3.3 In Defence of National Cinema	61
3.4 State, Market, Civil Society and National Cinema	65
3.5 Alienated National Cinemas	69
4 State Intervention in the Cultural Sphere: The Case of Cinema	81

4.1 State, Culture, and Mass Media	81
4.2 Mapping Film Policy	82
4.3 Trends in Film Policy in the Global Age	91

PART II RE-MAKING FILM IN CONTEMPORARY CHINA AND TAIWAN

5 China and Taiwan in the Global Age: A General

Introduction	102
5.1 The Trajectory of Taiwan's Development	103
5.2 The Socialist Journey of China	110
5.3 Facing Global Trends: The Asian Financial Crisis	114
5.4 Mass Media in Contemporary Taiwan and China	119

6 Transnational Interests 124

6.1 Hollywood Empire	124
6.2 When the Chinese Meets Hollywood	130
6.3 Taiwan's Fate of Colonisation	134
6.4 China: The Most Potentially Lucrative Zone	145

7 State Interventions 152

7.1 Taiwan: Mixing Statism with Commercialism	152
7.2 China: The Cinema for the People	158
7.3 Taiwan: Abandoning Film	164
7.4 China: Film Moves towards the Market	171
7.5 Powerless States?	181

8 National Industries 183

8.1 A Structurally Distorted Industry	184
8.2 The Fading Away of a National Film Industry	187
8.3 A New Film Industry for 'New China'	197

8.4 Crisis and Opportunity	200
8.5 Market, State and the Film industry	218
9 Film Analysis: Re-imagining the Nation	220
9.1 The (Re-) identification of Nation	221
9.2 The Memory of Colonial Powers and Imperialist Wars	240
10 Film Analysis: Re-connecting the Global and the Local	256
10.1 Tradition vs. Modernity	256
10.2 Contemporary Visions of Local Societies	278
Conclusion	291
Reference	298
Interviews	319
Filmography	321